...GOOD OR BETTER

...you saw the post... to Monday night's ...ose victory at Stokely ... As the Vanderbilt ...dores were laid to rest, ...ant Rodney Woods ...pon Larry Robinson ...ve him a big happy hug. ...ors used to do it that ... a Yankee pitcher ...get the last out in a ...ries triumph. ...y was right in char... to be celebrated with the ...e captain. The spirit... ...ervescent sophomore ...has a deep, big-brother ...r for Robinson. ...is a unique leader. He ...ery little. Never will you ...ee standing on a stool ...ing a fiery pep talk. His major addresses on the practice floor are "God move, Kos" or "That hitting 'em, Michael" or maybe "Let's play the defense."

"I have more respect for Larry Robinson than for anybody I've ever played basketball with," said Woods. "I've never seen a man go out night after night and work any harder than Larry does."

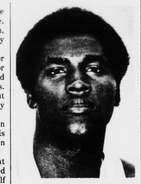
Woods feels Larry Robinson has actually influenced his basketball career, maybe even his life.

"The Saturday we lost at Alabama, Larry was knocked down eight times. Maybe half the time the other guy was called for charging. Any way, that player knocked Robby down and went on over him. He actually stepped in Larry's face.

"I remember how tired he looked after the game. That got to me. I started asking myself if I was trying as hard as Larry Robinson was trying. I got to wondering if I was giving as much of me as he was giving.

"I'll tell you . . . it was sort of embarrassing."

Ray Mears has said Robin



LARRY ROBINSON

son almost never has a bad game . . . only good or better. Larry is counted on for rebounding and defense and occasionally for shooting.

Robby leads the SEC in field-goal accuracy (64.3 %) but forces no shots.

Mears calls Robby the most unselfish player he's seen in years, a 100 per center in practice. It is there, during the week, where the captain's influence is so great.

Basketball has opened a king sized door for Larry Robinson. He came from very humble surroundings outside Appomattox, Va. His father is a tenant tobacco farmer, his mother the good shepherd of 14 other Robinsons.

Larry's dad decided years ago that this son would make good. When the whole family would be pulling tobacco in the fields, Larry would be the last to quit. He had this responsibility about work even as a boy.

Joe Lewis remembers Larry as an eighth-grader. Joe coached everything at little Carver Price High and he wanted Robinson out for sports.

"My wife spotted him first," says Joe, now the head coach at Kittrell Junior College in North Carolina. "Joan was Larry's teacher in the seventh grade and she'd come home all enthused about this wonderfully bright young man with the big hands and the quiet intensity.

"But he didn't want to play. He had a lot of chores at home. He wanted to help his daddy. And Larry was shy. He didn't like the idea of wearing short pants and jumping around in front of crowds."

Coach Lewis got the boy in one junior varsity game as an eighth-grader and told Larry when the season was over that he could be a starting player as a freshman if he'd work an hour a day during the summer.

"I helped him put up a goal in the backyard, just a hoop and a board nailed to a pole. I gave him a basketball and he used it. Larry moved up to the first team in our seventh game that next year and he started every one thereafter."

Larry Robinson is a legend around Appomattox. He was a pitcher and first baseman, a fullback and a great basketball player.

"The best I've seen in my 15 years of coaching," said Lewis. "I never expect to have another. But I still consider myself fortunate. Some coach es never get one like him'.

Coach Lewis speaks of dedication and super effort and tireless toil in practice. But he has seen more, things East Tennesseans would never know about.

"Larry's folks couldn't give him much in material things but they gave him character,' says the coach. "He came from a background where a boy might feel sorry for himself or have bitterness against society But Larry Robinson is too big for that.

"I remember him going to a basketball camp at Ferrum Junior College one summer. Some of us made up the money to send him. He didn't have much to take except his Bible but he came back with more confidence, with an awareness that he could play with anybody. Tom McMillen (Maryland star) was on his camp team."

Robby took Price High to the state tournament twice. As a senior, he averaged 46 points in the three nights and rewrote seven of eight tournament records.

"And yet, he was unselfish," recalls Joe. "Whether he scored or not was unimportant. What always mattered was whether we won."

Larry went to Ferrum, became a junior college all-American, led the team to the national tournament and was honored by his school as the most outstanding male student.

Mr. Ferrum, they called him. And nine out of 10 of the student body electorate were white.

Martin Morris coached at Ferrum, the same Marty who is now Tennessee's recruiter. Needless to say, a bond between the two was forged there which will seemingly last a lifetime. Marty grew up the hard way too, He understands hard work.

Mrs. Morris (Gail) says Robby is "family" at their house. It's a thrill for her when the Tennessee crowd gives Larry those standing ovations. And she is proud of Larry's concern about studies, his ambition to be a coach if he can't be a pro.

"I understand how Marty and Gail feel about him", said Larry's high school coach. "He's close to my heart, too. I've got a boy, 11 years old. If he turns out to be half the man Larry Robinson is, I'll be delighted."

It's your turn, captain.

7TH GRADE 4-H MEETING

The 7th Grade 4-H meeting was held January 18, 1973. The meeting was opened by our president Gwen Ferguson. The pledges were led by Polly Carter and Gay Berryman. Then the president asked the secretary to read the minutes of the last meeting. There was one mistake made in the reading of the minutes.

Mr. Sweet showed ribbons that people would win in Public Speaking. The contest would be held on Monday and Tuesday of the following week. Polly Carter read her paper on Tweetsie Railroad, for practice. Then Mr. Sweet asked Barbara Ferguson to get the names of the pupils that would be in the contest. Mr. Sweet passed out some more pine seedling orders. There were 42 pupils in our meeting. Mr. Sweet passed out some papers for us to answer on TV programs we liked and if we should get allowances. The 4-H Dog Chain will be discussed at the following meetings.

The meeting was adjourned by the 5th grade lunch period.
